Farm to table

When Little Guest, the kid-friendly online hotel website, joins forces for a collection with Bonpoint, the elegant Parisian children's clothing brand, the result is a collection of pieces with springtime prints and a desire to escape to the heart of the Alpilles.

To celebrate early spring, Little Guest has teamed up with Bonpoint to showcase a fresh and sunny garden collection: cherry embroidery, Liberty prints in organic cotton, flowery barrettes, hats and clutch bags in natural raffia enhance children's outfits.

It is in the heart of Domaine de Manville, an intimate hotel full of charm and a member of the Little Guest collection, that the two brands decided to merge for a weekend to immortalize their invigorating encounter. A place where the vegetable garden becomes a playground for the youngest visitors. The hotel also houses a magnificent kids' club focused entirely on nature, surrounded by trailers set under the estate's pine trees... Many activities are offered, including a walk in the vegetable garden where the treasure hunt turns into tomato picking and digging up carrots galore. Simple gestures lost but found and shown to children by a passionate market gardener. From the vegetable garden to the table, it is only a short step to the kitchen under the watchful eye of Michelin-starred chef Lieven Van Aken, to create a recipe based on the spoils unearthed in the garden earlier.

Little Guest and Bonpoint invited Charlotte Collard and her three daughters to immortalise this collaboration at the sumptuous Domaine de Manville. The influencer, who brilliantly combines healthy food, lifestyle and full-time motherhood, is the perfect embodiment of this beautiful collaboration, which above all advocates a return to the roots.
